	Question		Answer
1.	If the applicant does not have full legal site control for the proposed project at the time the proposal is submitted, will the project be considered eligible for funding in this Renewable Energy Fund grant round?	1.	Yes. If selected for funding, the applicant would need to have full legal site control for the proposed project prior to execution of a grant contract. Currently, proposals are due on October 28, 2016. There will likely be at least 8 - 12 weeks needed to fully review proposals including time to evaluate, score, select, make a recommendation to the Commission, receive approval, develop contract documents with selected grant awardees, submit contracts to the Governor &amp; Council for approval, etc. For example, in the 2015 C&amp;I RFP process, proposals were due on November 13, 2015 and the first final contract with a selected grantee was executed in late February, 2016. This example is provided to demonstrate that there is some period of time after the proposal due date for final legal site control for the project to be secured.
